SURVEY BACKGROUND

About The National Citizen Survey™

The National Citizen Survey™ (The NCS™) is a collaborative effort between National Research Center, Inc. (NRC) and the International City/County Management Association (ICMA).

The survey and its administration are standardized to assure high quality survey methods and comparable results across The National Citizen Survey™ jurisdictions. Participating households are selected at random and the household member who responds is selected without bias. Multiple mailings give each household more than one chance to participate with self-addressed and postage paid envelopes. Results are statistically re-weighted to reflect the proper demographic composition of the entire community.

The National Citizen Survey™ customized for this jurisdiction was developed in close cooperation with local jurisdiction staff. The City of Dallas staff selected items from a menu of questions about services and community problems; they defined the jurisdiction boundaries NRC used for sampling; and they provided the appropriate letterhead and signatures for mailings. City of Dallas staff also determined local interest in a variety of add-on options to The National Citizen Survey™ Basic Service.

UNDERSTANDING THE RESULTS

Survey Administration

Following the mailing of a pre-survey notification postcard to a random sample of 8,400 households, surveys were mailed to the same residences approximately one week later. A reminder letter and a new survey were sent to the same households after two weeks. All mailed materials were printed in English and Spanish. Of the mailed postcards, 703 were undeliverable due to vacant or “not found” addresses. Completed surveys were received from 1,657 residents, for a response rate of 21.5%. Typically, the response rates obtained on citizen surveys range from 20% to 40%. Response rates for individual Council Districts are reported in Appendix B.

It is customary to describe the precision of estimates made from surveys by a “level of confidence” (or margin of error). The 95 percent confidence level for this survey of 1,657 residents is generally no greater than plus or minus 2 percentage points around any given percent reported for the entire sample.

The results were weighted to reflect the demographic profile of all residents in the City of Dallas. (For more information on the survey methodology, see Appendix B. A copy of the survey materials can be found in Appendix C.)

Survey Validity

The question of survey validity has two parts: 1) how can we be confident that the results from our sample are representative of the results we would have gotten had we administered the survey to the entire population? and 2) how closely do the perspectives recorded on the survey reflect what residents really believe or do?

To answer the first question, we use the best survey research practices for the resources spent to assure that the results from the sample reflect the opinions of residents in the entire jurisdiction. These practices include:

1. Using a mail-out/mail-back methodology, which typically gets a higher response rate than phone for the same dollars spent.
2. Selecting households at random within the jurisdiction.
3. Over-sampling attached units to improve response from hard-to-reach, lower income, or younger apartment dwellers.

4. Selecting the respondent within the household using an unbiased sampling procedure¹.
5. Contacting potential respondents three times to encourage response from people who may have different opinions or habits than those who would respond with only a single prompt.
6. Soliciting response on jurisdiction letterhead signed by the highest ranking elected official or staff member.
7. Providing a self-addressed, postage-paid return envelope.
8. Offering the survey in Spanish when appropriate and requested by City officials.
9. Using the most recent available information about the characteristics of jurisdiction residents to re-weight the data to reflect the demographics of the population.

The answer to the second question about how closely the perspectives recorded on the survey reflect what residents really believe or do is more complex. Resident responses to surveys are influenced by a variety of factors. For questions about service quality, residents' expectations for service quality play a role as well as the "objective" quality of the service provided, the way the resident perceives the entire community (that is, the context in which the service is provided), the scale on which the resident is asked to record her opinion and, of course, the opinion, itself, that a resident holds about the service. Similarly a resident's report of certain behaviors is colored by what he or she believes is the socially desirable response (e.g. reporting tolerant behaviors toward "oppressed groups," likelihood of voting a tax increase for services to poor people, use of alternative modes of travel to work besides the single occupancy vehicle), her memory of the actual behavior (if it is not a question speculating about future actions, like a vote), her confidence that she can be honest without suffering any negative consequences (thus the need for anonymity) as well as the actual behavior itself.

How closely survey results come to recording the way a person really feels or behaves often is measured by the coincidence of reported behavior with observed current behavior (e.g. driving habits), reported intentions to behave with observed future behavior (e.g. voting choices) or reported opinions about current community quality with objective characteristics of the community (e.g. feelings of safety correlated with rates of crime). There is a body of scientific literature that has investigated the relationship between reported behaviors and actual behaviors. Well-conducted surveys, by and large, do capture true respondent behaviors or intentions to act with great accuracy. Predictions of voting outcomes tend to be quite accurate using survey research, as do reported behaviors that are not about highly sensitive issues (e.g. family abuse or other illegal or morally sanctioned activities). For self-reports about highly sensitive issues, statistical adjustments can be made to correct for the respondents' tendency to report what they think the "correct" response should be.

Research on the correlation of resident opinion about service quality and "objective" ratings of service quality tend to be ambiguous, some showing stronger relationships than others. NRC's own research has demonstrated that residents who report the lowest ratings of street repair live in communities with objectively worse street conditions than those who report high ratings of street repair (based on road quality, delay in street repair, number of road repair employees). Similarly, the lowest rated fire services appear to be "objectively" worse than the highest rated fire services (expenditures per capita, response time, "professional" status of fire fighters, breadth of services and training provided). Whether some research confirms or disconfirms that relationship between what residents think about a community and what can be seen "objectively" in a community, we have argued that resident opinion is a perspective that cannot be ignored by government administrators. Elsewhere we have written, "If you collect trash three times a day but residents think that your trash haul is lousy, you still have a problem."

Use of the "Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor" Response Scale

The scale on which respondents are asked to record their opinions about service and community quality is "excellent," "good," "fair" or "poor" (EGFP). This scale has important advantages over other scale possibilities (very good to very bad; very satisfied to very dissatisfied; strongly agree to strongly disagree, as examples). EGFP is used by the plurality of jurisdictions conducting citizen surveys across the U.S. The advantage of familiarity is one we did not want to dismiss because elected officials, staff and residents already are acquainted with opinion surveys measured this way. EGFP also has the advantage of offering three positive options, rather than only two, over which a resident can offer an opinion. While symmetrical scales often are the right choice in other measurement tasks, we have found that ratings of almost every local government service in almost every jurisdiction tend, on average, to be positive (that is, above the scale midpoint). Therefore, to permit finer distinctions among positively rated services, EGFP offers three options across which to spread those ratings. EGFP is more neutral because it requires no positive statement of service quality to judge (as agree-disagree scales require) and, finally, EGFP intends to measure absolute quality of service delivery or community quality (unlike satisfaction scales which ignore residents' perceptions of quality in favor of their report on the acceptability of the level of service offered).

“Don’t Know” Responses

On many of the questions in the survey respondents may answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in Appendix A. However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in the body of the report. In other words, the tables and graphs display the responses from respondents who had an opinion about a specific item.

For two of the items related to crime victimization and crime reporting, “don’t know” responses were not removed. These questions were not evaluative; rather, respondents were asked if they or any member of their household had been a victim of a crime within the last year. If they were, they were then asked whether the crime had been reported to police.

Putting Evaluations Onto a 100-Point Scale

Although responses to many of the evaluative questions were made on a 4 point scale with 4 representing the best rating and 1 the worst, many of the results in this summary are reported on a common scale where 0 is the worst possible rating and 100 is the best possible rating. If everyone reported “excellent,” then the result would be 100 on the 100-point scale. Likewise, if all respondents gave a “poor” rating, the result would be 0 on the 100-point scale. If the average rating for quality of life was “good,” then the result would be 67 on a 100-point scale; “fair” would be 33 on the 100-point scale. The 95 percent confidence interval around an average score on the 100-point scale is no greater than plus or minus 2 points based on all respondents.

Interpreting Comparisons to Previous Years

This report contains comparisons with prior years’ results. In this report, we are comparing 2006 data with 2005 data in the graphs. In the graphs, there are two separate representations labeled by year. The table following a graph contains 2006 data only, and is labeled accordingly. Differences between years can be considered “statistically significant” if they are greater than 2 percentage points or 2 points on a 100 point scale.

COMMUNITY LIFE

The National Citizen Survey™ contained many questions related to the life of residents in the community. Survey participants were asked to rate their overall quality of life, as well as other aspects of quality of life in Dallas. They also evaluated characteristics of the community, and gave their perceptions of safety in the City of Dallas. The questionnaire assessed use of the amenities of the community and involvement by respondents in the civic and economic life of Dallas.

Quality of Life

When asked to rate the overall quality of life in Dallas, 8% of respondents thought it was “excellent.” Eight percent rated overall quality of life as “poor.”

The average rating of overall quality of life on a 100-point scale was 48 in 2005. In 2006, the rating was 51. Dallas as a place to raise children received an average rating of 40 on a 100-point scale in 2005, compared to 43 in 2006. Other ratings can be seen in the charts below.

Ratings of Community Characteristics in Dallas

In 2006, the highest rated characteristics of Dallas were shopping opportunities and educational opportunities. The average rating on a 100-point scale given to shopping opportunities in 2006 was 72 compared to 73 in 2005. Average ratings given to all the characteristics are shown in Figures 3, 4 and 5.

When asked about potential problems in Dallas, the three concerns rated by the highest proportion of respondents as a “major problem” in 2006 were drugs, crime, and traffic congestion. In 2006 69% rated drugs as a “major problem” compared to 75% in 2005.

In 2006, the rate of population growth in Dallas was viewed as “too fast” by 66% of respondents, while 4% thought it was “too slow.”

Perceptions of Safety

When evaluating safety in the community, 26% of respondents felt “somewhat” or “very safe” from violent crimes in Dallas in 2006 and in 2005. In their neighborhood after dark, 42% of survey participants felt “somewhat” or “very safe” in 2006, compared to 38% in 2005.

In 2006, as assessed by the survey, 29% of households reported that at least one member had been the victim of one or more crimes in the past year. In 2005, 29% of households had reported that at least one member had been a crime victim. Of those who had been the victim of a crime in 2006, 74% had reported it to police compared to 70% in 2005.

Community Participation

Participation in the civic, social and economic life of Dallas during the past year was assessed on the survey. The proportion of respondents engaging in various activities is shown in the chart below, with comparisons made between 2006 and 2005. Among those completing the questionnaire in 2006, 50% reported having ridden a local bus in Dallas in the past year compared to 45% in 2005. Voter status was also estimated, and is shown on page 18.²

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Several aspects of the government of the City of Dallas were evaluated by residents completing The National Citizen Survey™. They were asked how much trust they placed in their local government, and what they felt about the services they receive from the City of Dallas. Those who had any contact with a City of Dallas employee in the past year gave their impressions of the most recent encounter.

Public Trust

When asked to evaluate whether they were pleased with the overall direction taken by the City of Dallas, residents gave an average rating of 49 on a 100-point scale in 2006, compared to a rating of 47 in 2005.

The City of Dallas Employees

Impressions of the City of Dallas employees were assessed on the questionnaire. In 2006, those who had been in contact with a City of Dallas employee in the past year (59%) rated their overall impression as 47 on a 100-point scale, compared to an average rating of 48 received in 2005.

APPENDIX B: SURVEY METHODOLOGY

The National Citizen Survey™ was developed to provide local jurisdictions an accurate, affordable and easy way to assess and interpret resident opinion about important community issues. While standardization of question wording and survey methods provide the rigor to assure valid results, each jurisdiction has enough flexibility to construct a customized version of The National Citizen Survey™ that asks residents about key local services and important local issues.

Results offer insight into residents' perspectives about local government performance and as such provide important benchmarks for jurisdictions working on performance measurement. The National Citizen Survey™ is designed to help with budget, land use and strategic planning as well as to communicate with local residents. The National Citizen Survey™ permits questions to test support for local policies and answers to its questions also speak to community trust and involvement in community-building activities as well as to resident demographic characteristics.

Sampling

Approximately 8,400 households were selected to participate in the survey using a stratified systematic sampling method.³ An individual within each household was selected using the birthday method.⁴

Survey Administration

Selected households received three mailings, one week apart, beginning April 10, 2006. The first mailing was a prenotification postcard announcing the upcoming survey. The next mailing contained a letter from the City Manager inviting the household to participate, a questionnaire and postage-paid return envelope. The final mailing contained a reminder letter and another survey and postage-paid return envelope. Completed surveys were collected over the following six weeks.

Response Rate and Confidence Intervals

Of the 7,697 eligible households, 1,657 completed the survey providing a response rate of 21.5%. Approximately 703 addresses sampled were “vacant” or “not found.”⁵ In general, the response rates obtained on citizen surveys range from 20% to 40%. For the City of Dallas, response rates were also calculated for each of the 14 Council Districts.

³ Systematic sampling is a method that closely approximates random sampling by selecting every Nth address until the desired number of households is chosen.

⁴ The birthday method is a process to remove bias in the selection of a person within the household by asking the “person whose birthday has most recently passed” to complete the questionnaire. The underlying assumption in this method is that day of birth has no relationship to the way people respond to surveys but leaving selection of respondent to household members will lead to bias.

⁵ “Eligible” households refer to addresses that belong to residences that are not vacant within the City of Dallas.

Response rates by Council District can be seen in the table on the following page. The sample of households was selected systematically and impartially from a list of residences in the United States maintained by the U.S. postal service and sold to NRC through an independent vendor. For each household, one adult, selected in an unbiased fashion, was asked to complete the survey. The sample drawn for Dallas used USPS data to approximate the geographic boundaries of the jurisdiction, though some households just outside the city limits may have received surveys. The survey completers who technically do not reside in the jurisdiction may choose to respond to the survey because they feel an affiliation with the jurisdiction and its services. Local governments often have a sphere of influence – providing in-jurisdiction services that perimeter-residents use or even providing services outside the jurisdiction boundaries.

The City of Dallas staff opted to have surveys sent in both English and Spanish to each of the 8,400 households. Of the 1,657 completed surveys, 179 (11% of the total number of completed surveys) were completed in Spanish.

In theory, in 95 cases out of 100, the results based on such samples will differ by no more than 2 percentage points in either direction from what would have been obtained had responses been collected from all Dallas adults. This difference is also called a “margin of error.”⁶ This difference from the presumed population finding is referred to as the sampling error. For subgroups of responses, the margin of sampling error is larger. In addition to sampling error, the practical difficulties of conducting any survey of the public may introduce other sources of error. For example, the failure of some of the selected adults to participate in the sample or the difficulty of including all sectors of the population, such as residents of some institutions or group residences, may lead to somewhat different results.

⁶ The margin of error was calculated using the following formula: $1.96 * \text{square root}(0.25/400)$. This margin of error is calculated in the most conservative way. The standard error was assumed to be the greatest for a binomial distribution: 50%/50%.

Weighting and Analyzing the Data

The surveys were analyzed using the SPSS statistical package. Frequency distributions and average (mean) ratings are presented in the body of the report.

The demographic characteristics of the sample were compared to those of the City of Dallas as reflected in the information sent by staff to National Research Center, Inc. When necessary, survey results were statistically adjusted to reflect the known population profile.

Generally, two variables are used in a weighting scheme. Known population characteristics are compared to the characteristics of survey respondents. Generally, characteristics chosen as weighting variables are selected because they are not in proportion to what is shown in a jurisdiction's demographic profile and because differences in opinion are observed between subgroups of these characteristics. For the City of Dallas, each of the 14 Council Districts were weighted individually. The weights of the individual Council Districts were then used to determine the overall weight for the City. The socioeconomic characteristics that were used to weight the data were tenure, gender, and age. Other discrepancies between the whole population and the sample were also aided by the weighting due to the intercorrelation of many socioeconomic characteristics, although the percentages are not always identical in the sample compared to the population norms. The results of the weighting schemes are presented in the tables on the following pages.

APPENDIX C: SURVEY MATERIALS

The following pages contain copies of the survey materials sent to randomly selected households within the City of Dallas. All households selected for inclusion in the study were first sent a prenotification postcard informing them that they would be receiving a questionnaire within the following week. A week later, a cover letter and survey were sent, with a postage paid return envelope. Two weeks later a second cover letter and survey were sent. The second cover letter asked that those who had responded not do so again, while urging those who had not yet returned their surveys to please do so.

Dear Dallas Resident:

The City of Dallas wants to know what you think about our community and municipal government. You have been randomly selected to participate in Dallas's 2006 Citizen Survey.

Please take a few minutes to fill out the enclosed Citizen Survey. Your answers will help the City Council make decisions that affect our community. You should find the questions interesting and we will definitely find your answers useful. Please participate! If you need this survey to appear in larger font please contact the City of Dallas at 3-1-1.

To get a representative sample of Dallas residents, the adult (anyone 18 years or older) in your household who most recently had a birthday should complete this survey. Year of birth of the adult does not matter.

Please have the appropriate member of the household spend a few minutes to answer all the questions and return the survey in the enclosed postage-paid envelope. Your responses will remain completely anonymous.

The survey results will be briefed to Council and posted on the City's Web site: www.dallascityhall.com in June 2006.

Your participation in this survey is very important – especially since your household is one of only a small number of households being surveyed. If you have any questions about the Citizen Survey please call 3-1-1.

Please help us shape the future of Dallas. Thank you for your time and participation.

Sincerely,

Mary K. Suhm
City Manager

Ciudad de Dallas

Abril de 2006

Estimado ciudadano de Dallas:

El Gobierno de la Ciudad de Dallas desea saber qué piensa usted sobre nuestra comunidad y el gobierno municipal. Su hogar ha sido seleccionado al azar para participar en la Encuesta Ciudadana del 2006 de el Gobierno de la Ciudad de Dallas.

Por favor, tómese unos minutos para llenar la Encuesta Ciudadana adjunta. Sus respuestas ayudarán a que el Concejo de la Ciudad tome decisiones que influirán en nuestra comunidad. Estamos seguros de que las preguntas le parecerán interesantes y tenemos la certeza de que sus respuestas serán de gran utilidad. ¡Por favor participe! Si necesita que le enviemos una encuesta con letra más grande, por favor, comuníquese con el Gobierno de la Ciudad de Dallas por el 3-1-1.

A fin de obtener una muestra representativa de los habitantes de Dallas, le pedimos que la encuesta sea completada por el adulto (de 18 años o más) de su hogar que haya cumplido años más recientemente. El año de nacimiento del adulto no tiene importancia.

Por favor, pídale al miembro de la familia que corresponda que se tome unos minutos para contestar todas las preguntas y devolver la encuesta en el sobre adjunto con franqueo pagado. Sus respuestas permanecerán completamente anónimas.

Los resultados de la encuesta serán informados al Concejo para luego ser colocados en la página de Internet del gobierno de la Ciudad de Dallas: www.alcaldiadedallas.com en junio del 2006.

Su participación en esta encuesta es muy importante, en especial, porque su familia es parte de un pequeño número de hogares seleccionados para este fin. Si tiene alguna pregunta acerca de esta encuesta, por favor llámenos al 3-1-1.

Ayúdenos a moldear el futuro de Dallas. Gracias por su tiempo y participación.

Atentamente,

Mary K. Suhm
Administradora de la Ciudad de Dallas
